GREAT BATTLE BEING WAGED BY SENATORIAL CANDIDATES.

Burns and Grant Working Wild Excitement Prevails Like Beavers for More Votes as the Voting Is in Progress.

SACRAMENTO, March 18.—The deadlock is just as strong as ever at 3:45 o'clock, this afternoon. Grant has 30 votes; Burns, 29 and Barnes 21. The convention will adjourn sine die a little after 4 p. m. It is very probable that no Senator will be elected. As The Tribune goes to press the deadlock is still firm with no possible chance of breaking it.

(Special to The Tribune.)
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—The first ballot (eighty-sixth) resulted as follows:
BURNS 27
GRANT 30
SCOTT 6
ESTES 1
PATERSON 1
WHITE 28
ROSENFELD 2
BARLOW 2
PHELAN 4
No Republican changes.
Another ballot ordered.
The Burns forces are working to take a recess until 4 o'clock after the third ballot.

WANT TO ADJOURN.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—The roll is being called without change.
The Grant men are working to adjourn convention after second ballot. Burns men are fighting the proposition.

HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—After the third ballot Dibble will move that a recess be taken, and a test vote will then occur. No Republican changes on second ballot. Another ordered.
GREAT EXCITEMENT.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—Third ballot, no change.
Dibble presents a resolution calling for a recess.

Boyce objects in a scathing speech. He says the hour has come when the members should show their manhood. Great excitement prevailing.
Boyce talks of men refusing blandishments of wealth and diabolical machinations.
He says the members must not falter in their course.
HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—The Democrats will vote with the Grant forces against a recess.

The indications are that the Burns men will lose their fight for postponement.
HATTON.

DEMOCRAT FOR GRANT.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Meserve, a Democrat has voted for Grant.
Chamber is in an uproar.
HATTON.

GRANT MAN FOR BURNS.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Marvin has just voted for Burns.
Marvin has been Grant man. Wild excitement.
HATTON.

HE WANTS A RECESS.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Dibble offers a resolution that a recess be taken until 4 o'clock.
Boyce and Dibble wrangle over resolution.
Cutter offers an amendment that the Legislature take ten more ballots and that then an adjournment be taken sine die.

DIBBLE'S APPEAL.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—Boyce alludes to attempts to get members in caucus, and urges all to fight the recess proposition.
Dibble answers Boyce, saying he has no reply to make to a speech of that kind.
He says a great deal of work has to be done, and that during the recess the legislative matters can be attended to.
He then alludes to the Senatorial fight and says the members are voting because they believe it is their duty to do so.
Dibble mentions Burns' name, and great applause follows, the lobby taking up the cheering.
In conclusion Dibble suggests that a recess be taken.

RECESS DEFEATED.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—Motion for recess defeated by vote of 62 to 58.
HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—The program of the Grant men is to take ten more ballots and then move to adjourn.

HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Burns men are now making a desperate fight to offset the combination effected between the Grant forces and Democrats.

The Grant men are confident they can accomplish adjournment on the thirtieth ballot. Great excitement in the chamber. Workers for both sides are rushing around among the members.
HATTON.

RESOLUTION WITHDRAWN.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—Davis objects to being tied up to the number of ballots to be cast.
He says he is also opposed to a recess. He declares that now that the changes are in progress it is no time for a recess.
Cutter withdraws the substitute.
Dibble withdraws the resolution, saying: "We can stay as long as any one."
HATTON.

END OF FOURTH BALLOT.
SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—The end of the fourth ballot finds the candidates as follows:
Burns 22, Barnes 21, Grant 30, Scott 5, Estes 1, White 23, De Vries 1, Phelan 7, Rosenfeld 2, Paterston 1.
HATTON.

COSPER VOTED FOR BURNS.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Cospers has just voted for Burns.
Chamber is wild with excitement.
Cospers has been voting for Scott. He was originally a Burns man.
The Burns men are jubilant and say they will get more gains as balloting progresses.
HATTON.

RESOLUTION FOR RECESS.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Seventh ballot no change.
Stratton offers a resolution that a recess be taken until 7:30.
Cutter offers a substitute that twelve more ballots be taken and then an adjournment ordered sine die.
Smith talks against substitute and asks that Stratton's resolution be carried.
Smith is a Grant man.
Smith says the members of the Legislature are honorable men and can be entrusted to have a conference with each other.
He says the fight cannot be won by physical endurance.
Smith calls attention to the fact that the tax levy be passed in the Senate. Concludes with a strong appeal for a recess.
McDonald of Alameda takes the floor against Stratton's resolution.
Kays conferences will do no good as they have had many of them without result.
Boyce says that at this time every man should express his own opinion. Declares himself in favor of substitute.
Cutter's substitute offered and roll is ordered called.

TWELVE MORE BALLOTS.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Cutter's substitute was adopted by a vote of 61 to 57 amidst a great uproar.
Greenwell, who had voted against it, changed.
Boyce and Leavitt got in a wrangle as the vote was announced.
Only twelve more ballots will now be taken.
Chamber in intense excitement.
HATTON.

BALLOT TILL SUNDOWN.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Some are of the opinion now that the balloting may last until sundown or even midnight.
Large boxes of sandwiches have been brought in and are being distributed among members who are settling down to a long siege.

If by any chance, the balloting should last until midnight the enormous amount of legislation will be sacrificed as the files are crowded in both houses.
Some are talking of rescinding the resolution for adjournment but it is not thought likely to carry.
The Governor has announced that he will not allow the hands of the clock to be set back at midnight in accordance with the custom but will have the time watched and will not consider and measure, that is handled after 12 o'clock.
HATTON.

STILL NO CHANGE.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—No changes in fifth ballot (90th).
HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Sixth ballot no change.
HATTON.

DEADLOCK STILL HOLDS.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Eighty-eighth ballot (first of twelve) brought no change.
HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Stratton offers a resolution that joint assembly do now adjourn.
Chairman Flint holds the resolution out of order on the ground that a resolution had just been adopted fixing the adjournment and the only motion in order is one to reconsider.
Next roll call on Senator ordered.
HATTON.

BARNES LOSES ONE.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—The ninety-fourth ballot showed no change and the ninety-fifth, the tenth of the day, was taken. On this ballot Muenster of San Joaquin changed from Barnes to Van R. Paterston. This cut Barnes' vote down to twenty.
NINTH BALLOT TODAY.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Ninth ballot, no change.
TENTH BALLOT.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Tenth ballot, no change.
HATTON.

ATTEMPT TO RESCIND.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Shortridge offers a resolution but the chair rules it out of order.
Bettman moves that the vote by which the resolution to adjourn was carried be rescinded.
Cutter raises point of order that Bettman did not vote in affirmative on original resolution.
Chair sustained it.
This is same point on which Stratton was knocked out by Cutter.
Another roll call on Senator ordered.
HATTON.

TAYLOR VOTES FOR PATERSON.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Senator Taylor has voted for Paterston. He has been voting for Barnes.
HATTON.

ELEVENTH BALLOT.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Eleventh ballot (ninety-sixth), no changes.
HATTON.

FEW CHANGES.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Larabee and Muenster are voting for Van R. Paterston. They have been voting for Barnes.
HATTON.

GRANT MEN SEEM TO BE A LITTLE MIXED ON VOTING.
Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—After the result of the ninety-second ballot had been announced an incident occurred which indicated division among the Grant men.
Stratton introduced a resolution calling for a recess until 7:30 this evening. Cutter, a supporter of Grant, immediately introduced a substitute calling for twelve more ballots unless a Senator be elected before that time.
In the event of no choice adjournment was then, by the terms of the resolution, to be taken sine die.
Smith, a Grant man, then took the floor and stated that he favored Stratton's resolution, and was opposed to Cutter's substitute.
The wildest excitement followed, for Smith's declaration indicated a division among the Grant forces.
Smith insisted that the legislators are intelligent beings and trustworthy, and that he, for one, believed that they could be trusted during a brief recess.
Boyce and McDonald of Alameda, both Grant men, favored Cutter's substitute, and this lent to the confusion.
The vote was taken on the Cutter substitute.
The substitute was adopted by a vote of 61 to 57.
The Cutter substitute to Stratton's resolution having been adopted, the ninety-third ballot was taken. By the terms of the substitute the one hundred and fourth ballot will be the last.
The Assembly chamber during this stage of the proceedings was in such an uproar that the clerk could scarcely be heard as he announced the vote.
The Republican vote continued unchanged during the ninety-third ballot.

DEMOCRATS GET HUNGRY AND LEAVE THE CONVENTION.
Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—When the third ballot had been taken, Dibble introduced a resolution calling for a recess until 4 o'clock this afternoon.
Boyce took the floor and denounced the resolution. He stated that every member upon the floor of the Assembly chamber was voting by his vote to show his manhood and resist all attempts in this eleventh hour to have the Senatorial question settled in a secret caucus, in a hidden corner. He begged those who had been resisting corrupt influences to remain true to themselves in this eleventh hour, and not to falter in their steps, but to continue steadfast to the end.
DIBBLE'S REPLY.
Dibble replied to Boyce. He stated that he had no reply to make to such a speech. He had, however, he said, some facts to state to the joint Assembly. He could see but two things to be done, to vote until midnight without result, or to take a recess and permit the two houses to continue in legislative session and complete the business before them.
Secondly, there appeared to be a crystallization of the forces. Members were voting for Grant, for Barnes, for Burns, because they consider it their duty to do so. He added that the others who are supporting Burns are not going to desert their candidate, nor the others without their candidates' consent. He wanted a recess that the three candidates might get together and agree among themselves, on one of themselves or on an outside candidate. "It is the duty," Dibble said, "of the Republicans to elect a Senator who is a Republican."
Leavitt (Burns Republican) moved the previous question, and the roll was called.
The Burns and Barnes men voted for adjournment, while the Grant people and the Democrats voted against it.
Dibble's resolution was voted down by a vote of 56 to 32.
FOURTH BALLOT.
The fourth ballot was taken, and Cospers, who has been voting for Scott, voted for Burns. The change was met with a storm of applause.
Marvin also voted for Burns. There was the greatest excitement.
Meserve, who had been voting for White, voted for Grant. Meserve is an Independent.

FIFTH BALLOT.
The fifth ballot resulted in no further changes. Much excitement was caused during the course of this ballot by the introduction of boxes filled with sandwiches, which were passed about the room.
The eighty-ninth and ninetieth ballots, the fourth and fifth taken today, resulted as follows:
Burns 21, Estes 1, Burns 20, Grant 30, Scott 5, Paterston 1, De Vries (D.) 1, Rosenfeld (D.) 2, White (D.) 23, Phelan (D.) 7. The ninety-first ballot was taken without opposition.
GREAT EXCITEMENT.
After the ninety-first ballot roll call was resumed. The excitement is intense. Little groups of Senators and Assemblymen are scattered all over the room in earnest consultation. The greater part of the excitement appears to be among the Grant men, who are in many cases in close consultation with Democrats. No change took place on this ballot.
Stratton introduced a resolution for a recess until 7:30. Cutter introduced a substitute similar to that of Dibble's resolution. Smith opposed substitute and favored motion. Indicates division in Grant forces.

STRATTON IS WILDLY EXCITED DURING THE TIME OF VOTING.
Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—At the end of the 93d ballot Stratton introduced a resolution calling for adjournment sine die. President pro tem Flint of San Jose declared the resolution to be out of order until the vote by which the Cutter substitute had been adopted be reconsidered.
Stratton then moved to reconsider. Cutter objected, raising the point that Stratton had voted in the negative and was not entitled to move to reconsider. The point of order was declared to be well taken, and Stratton took his place.
Stratton is the most excited man on the floor.
His face is as white as the wall.
He has been saying for several days that a Senator cannot be elected while conditions remain as they are.

CLOSING WORK OF LEGISLATORS. House Files Cleaned Up But Senate Is Behind.

SACRAMENTO, March 18.—At 4 o'clock the deadlock was just as strong as ever. There appears to be no chance whatever to elect a Senator.
But six more ballots are to be taken and then the convention will adjourn sine die. At this hour Grant has thirty votes, Burns 29 and Barnes 19.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Taylor moves to reconsider resolution on adjournment. Roll called ordered.
HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Taylor's motion to reconsider adjournment lost by vote of 72 to 41.
It looks now as if balloting will last full limit. This means six more ballots, which will not be over until 6 o'clock.
HATTON.
SACRAMENTO, March 18.—Thirtieth ballot (ninety-eighth); no changes.

ORGANIZING A BICYCLE TRUST.
Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.
CHICAGO, March 18.—J. W. Kaiser, president of the Monarch Bicycle Manufacturing Company, today said that a syndicate had been formed which proposed to buy out the plants of the large bicycle manufacturers of the country.
All will be conducted under one head, although each company will continue to operate its own plant under its own name.
The syndicate will market the wheels. In this way a vast amount spent for traveling men, etc., will be saved.
It is said it will take at least $25,000, 000 to buy the various plants.

M'KINLEY IS COMFORTABLE.

Will Leave Monday for a Trip to Jekyll Island.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 18.—President McKinley took his accustomed seat on the porch of the Hanna home after breakfast to smoke a cigar. S. G. McClendon, the plants' representative here, has ordered cars to be in Thomasville by Monday morning to take the President to Jekyll Island.

The party is not yet made up. Mr. and Mrs. McKinley and Senator Hanna will certainly go and possibly Mrs. Hanna, Vice-President Hobart, and Mrs. Hobart. In all probability, will be of the party, though they have not decided absolutely to make the trip.

The other members of the house party will remain here. If Mr. McKinley leaves Monday, Thomasville will see him again Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning at the latest.

Today's program included a drive and a luncheon at Elsom, a beautiful place two miles out on the Tallahassee railroad. Senator Hanna took Vice-President Hobart out shooting at the Country Club.

TRIPP MUST TURN OVER THE CASH.

Another suit of W. H. Knight against W. G. Tripp has been decided in favor of the plaintiff. It was for $12,000 on two promissory notes.

The suit is one of several which have resulted from a transfer of property from Mrs. Elizabeth L. Cook to Tripp when she thought she was going to die. It was understood that he would hold the property for her relatives. Mrs. Cook died, and Tripp refused to deliver the property, which consisted of real estate and notes to the value of about $12,000.

One suit has been decided by the Supreme Court in favor of Knight, as administrator of Mrs. Cook's estate.

The suit on the notes was decided in favor of the administrator this morning by Judge Greene on the ground that the transfer was not in the nature of a will and therefore invalid.

Another suit to recover the real estate transferred is pending. Read & Nussbaumer and Whitney represented the plaintiff in the action. They received a fee of 15 per cent of the amount recovered. Carey Howard and Wilkes Whitmore represented the defendant.

NEWS NOTES FROM THE POLICE COURT.

John Wilson and Charles Crowley were each given five days this morning for sleeping in a box car at the Sixteenth street station.

Judgment was suspended in the case of Henry Schmidt, who was found guilty of using vulgar language yesterday.

Jack Donovan was found not guilty on a charge of stealing a dog from Louie Raffetto. Raffetto caused considerable amusement while on the stand endeavoring to show how tough the defendant could talk when he chose.

The examination of Mary Flaherty on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon is occupying the attention of the court this afternoon. Snook & Church are conducting the prosecution, while Harry Pulcifer and W. H. O'Brien the defense.

MONEY IS READY FOR VOLUNTEERS.

Extra Pay for Sailors Provided by Congress.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The Navy Department wishes it known to all of the volunteer sailors who served with such credit during the late war and received honorable discharges that it need not cost them more than the price of a two-cent postage stamp to secure the gratuity, in the shape of extra pay, which Congress allotted to them in the closing hours of the last session. Very many applications have been pouring in upon the Navigation Bureau for information as to how the men "should proceed to collect their money."

In reply to these, the following circular letter is being sent out: "WASHINGTON, D. C., Sir:—Replying to your letter requesting information concerning the extra pay allowed men and officers of the volunteer navy by the last Congress for services rendered during the war with Spain, I have to inform you that your application should be addressed to the Auditor for the Navy Department, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. Very Respectfully,

"A. S. CROWNINGSHIELD,"

"Chief of Bureau."

These volunteer sailors are entitled to one month's extra pay, provided they served within the United States and two months extra pay if they served outside of the United States. It will be for the Auditor to draw this line of inside and outside, but it is said at the Navigation Bureau, that the vessels which served in the Cuban and Porto Rican blockades and vessels which went to foreign ports will be regarded as having been outside of the United States, while those which patrolled up and down the coast will be held to have been within the United States, although, of course, outside the three-mile limit.

The men should address their inquiries to the Auditor above named, who will furnish the information as to the further procedure. This is likely to involve later on the sending to Washington of the discharge of the applicant, and a statement of the services rendered by him. The Auditor will adjust all the claims, and in case of doubt as to the actual service, then this department will be consulted.

"I don't know. I don't think she did."

"Did you say to her—'you, I'll choke you if you don't find that money?'"

"I never talked to her that way. I said it to the boy. I might have said to the boy that I would choke him if he did not stop talking on the girl."

"You swore, did you?"

"Yes. I said, 'I was all the time swearing and cursing.'"

In response to other questions Brandes declared that he did not think Lillian had stolen the money at the time.

"I suspected some one else of taking the money," declared Brandes.

"Whom did you suspect?" queried Juror Ferry.

"I suspected my wife. She had done it before."

The last of this answer was ordered stricken out as not being responsive.

When Brandes said:

"I want to correct my statement. I said 'my wife,' when I intended to say Mrs. Brandes, as I have said all along."

Then Attorney Melvin asked the witness:

"Is Mrs. Bitta Brandes your wife?"

Objection was made, and Attorney Melvin in a forceful speech declared he had a right upon cross-examination to show whether or not this girl was surrounded by good or evil influences, whether or not she was a virtuous woman.

"We add to our objections, misconduct upon the part of the District Attorney, for he knows well what the answer will be. This is an issue for the jury," declared Sawyer.

A long argument followed between the attorneys for the defense and the prosecution. After mature consideration the court overruled the objection.

"The question was plain put."

"Is Mrs. Brandes your wife?"

"I don't wish to answer that question," answered Brandes.

"On what ground? Do you refuse to answer?"

"I don't want to answer," was the only reply.

Upon further objections, Judge Hall ruled that, as the answer would tend to degrade the witness, he need not reply, and thus another sensation was nipped in the bud.

Brandes was closely questioned regarding his cursing on Monday night.

"At whom were you cursing?"

"At Mrs. Brandes and my son. I do a great deal of cursing, but I never used to curse my daughter. I talked to her differently from the others."

The prisoner sobbed slightly. He explained his use of profane language owing to his business calling, and then under cross-fire became badly mixed up.

"Did you not have a conversation with Mrs. McDonald, a reporter, after the girl was taken to the police house?"

"I don't know. I don't know."

White arrested Brandes. Witness declared he had given White no information at the time, as he was advised by a newspaper reporter not to. He admitted giving White a lot of malicious names and had told the Deputy Sheriff some falsehoods.

"Isn't it a fact that you lied to Mr. White on this occasion so that he would not be able to summon Mr. Harvey as a witness?" questioned Melvin.

"I don't know as I lied to Mr. White, but I would not give him any information. I did not want any one to tamper with Harvey before my attorney had gotten hold of him. He is a very weak and unreliable man," replied Brandes.

"Did you not tell Deputy Coroner Straight that there were bruises on the body of the girl as a result of a beating she had received from Mrs. Brandes the previous night?"

An objection to the question was sustained.

Brandes was then shown a photograph of Lillian Brandes taken at death. He turned his head away from this relic of the dead, but was finally compelled to look at it. He declared that when he last saw the girl's face there were but two marks upon it.

"Isn't it a fact that you struck this girl with a piece of hose and made that mark on her face under her eye?" questioned Melvin.

"I never struck her," replied the prisoner.

"Now is not it a fact that you took this piece of hose and killed your daughter with it by striking her a blow over the head?"

"No sir, it is not so," was the answer.

"Is it not a fact that this piece of hose is in the possession of your attorneys now?"

"I don't know."

Witness further declared that he did not know of any hose being about the premises.

"How did Mrs. Lillian Brandes when she died?"

"I don't know how old she was. I

BRANDES IS IN A CLOSE CORNER.

Prisoner Refuses to Answer Questions Material to the Case.

W. A. Brandes, the alleged murderer of his little daughter Lillian, was still on the stand under cross-examination when the trial was resumed this morning. Mrs. Brandes was not brought into court, as her testimony is ended. Therefore she was left in her prison cell. Little Milton Brandes was in court, however, to keep his father company.

The first important point brought out by the prosecution was in relation to the carrying down stairs of Lillian's trunk.

It has been shown that the stairway down which Brandes alleges he dragged the trunk is but a very narrow passage-way, probably but little over two feet wide. Brandes declared the trunk to be longer and wider than the stenographer's table in front of him. His presumed wife No. 2 on the stand made a similar statement. According to this the prosecution intends to show that the trunk was never carried down the stairs at all, as it was wider than the hallway, and thus it would have been impossible to have dragged it down the stairs.

Brandes's defense is that the noise neighbors declare they heard was occasioned by a beating being administered to Lillian, was in fact the dragging of the trunk down stairs on the "Friday evening in question. If the prosecution can prove that the trunk could not have been taken down the passage-way, the underpinning is knocked away from a very important portion of the alleged murderer's defense.

"Now isn't it a fact that you were angry that evening?" questioned Melvin.

"Well, yes, I was angry at Mrs. Brandes for picking on the girl all the time."

"Did not you swear at the girl on that evening?" queried the cross-examiner.

"No sir. I don't say to you: 'Al, don't. I didn't take the money,'" asked Melvin.

"I don't know. I don't think she did."

"Did you say to her—'you, I'll choke you if you don't find that money?'"

"I never talked to her that way. I said it to the boy. I might have said to the boy that I would choke him if he did not stop talking on the girl."

"You swore, did you?"

"Yes. I said, 'I was all the time swearing and cursing.'"

"I don't want to answer," was the only reply.

Upon further objections, Judge Hall ruled that, as the answer would tend to degrade the witness, he need not reply, and thus another sensation was nipped in the bud.

Brandes was closely questioned regarding his cursing on Monday night.

"At whom were you cursing?"

"At Mrs. Brandes and my son. I do a great deal of cursing, but I never used to curse my daughter. I talked to her differently from the others."

The prisoner sobbed slightly. He explained his use of profane language owing to his business calling, and then under cross-fire became badly mixed up.

"Did you not have a conversation with Mrs. McDonald, a reporter, after the girl was taken to the police house?"

"I don't know. I don't know."

White arrested Brandes. Witness declared he had given White no information at the time, as he was advised by a newspaper reporter not to. He admitted giving White a lot of malicious names and had told the Deputy Sheriff some falsehoods.

"Isn't it a fact that you lied to Mr. White on this occasion so that he would not be able to summon Mr. Harvey as a witness?" questioned Melvin.

"I don't know as I lied to Mr. White, but I would not give him any information. I did not want any one to tamper with Harvey before my attorney had gotten hold of him. He is a very weak and unreliable man," replied Brandes.

"Did you not tell Deputy Coroner Straight that there were bruises on the body of the girl as a result of a beating she had received from Mrs. Brandes the previous night?"

An objection to the question was sustained.

Brandes was then shown a photograph of Lillian Brandes taken at death. He turned his head away from this relic of the dead, but was finally compelled to look at it. He declared that when he last saw the girl's face there were but two marks upon it.

"Isn't it a fact that you struck this girl with a piece of hose and made that mark on her face under her eye?" questioned Melvin.

"I never struck her," replied the prisoner.

"Now is not it a fact that you took this piece of hose and killed your daughter with it by striking her a blow over the head?"

"No sir, it is not so," was the answer.

"Is it not a fact that this piece of hose is in the possession of your attorneys now?"

"I don't know."

Witness further declared that he did not know of any hose being about the premises.

"How did Mrs. Lillian Brandes when she died?"

"I don't know how old she was. I think she was between 12 and 14 years old."

She looked to be older than she was and used to say she was 15 years old."

"Who directed your suspicion to the girl as having taken the money?" asked Juror Sieben.

"My boy said that Lillian had told him she had hidden the money, so he would not be sent away on Saturday," was the reply. "The girl told me afterward that she thought the money was all right and that it would be found."

Witness further stated that the girl had declared:

"I would rather kill myself than go back."

"When I saw froth on her mouth I thought at first that she had taken poison and then hung herself."

"Is Milton Brandes your son?" asked Juror Ferry.

"Yes sir, he is."

Witness declared the lad to be a truthful boy.

"What did you mean by saying you suspected Mrs. Brandes, and that she had done it before?"

"Well, Mrs. Brandes is a very economical woman and she used to put money away, that's what I mean."

"Isn't it a fact that she used to hide money and then tell you she did not have any?"

"I don't know as you can say that, exactly," was the answer.

This ended Brandes' ordeal and the case was adjourned.

Testimony in rebuttal will be put on on Tuesday, to which day the case was adjourned.

WIFE MADE HIS HOME VERY UNHAPPY.

It was because his wife could not abstain from drink that Robert J. Wright left his home and is now suing for divorce.

According to the deposition of Samuel Ballentine, Wright and his wife were married in Philadelphia in 1891. After a few months of happiness Mrs. Wright began to develop a fondness for intoxicating liquor. The habit grew upon her until she became a confirmed slave to its influence.

After the first six months of married life Mrs. Wright began having regular sprees. The husband, who was a weaver, would return home from his work ready for his supper, and he would find his help-mate intoxicated, so he claims. On several occasions Mrs. Wright and his daughters were locked out of the house.

Wright pleaded with his wife not to break up his home, and she promised to do better, but the habit had grown too strong and she could not resist the temptation.

Finally, after two years of such life, Wright left his home and has now brought suit for a legal separation.

Fine legal points to be decided.

A difficult legal point has arisen in the action of L. C. Wickershaw against James L. Chittenden and others. The point involved is as to what amount of money should be paid for costs.

When the suit was decided judgment was given for the defendant against the plaintiff for about $216 costs. The plaintiff appealed to the Supreme Court but the decision of the lower court was affirmed.

In the meantime the motion to retax the costs was granted, with the result that the amount was fixed at about $48. This was before the decision of the Supreme Court was rendered.

Now the question arises, should the $48 be paid by the Supreme Court or should the plaintiff pay the costs of the lower court take precedence in fixing the rate. The question involves several nice legal points.

AFTERMATH OF HOTEL HORROR.

Fourteen Known Dead and Forty Persons Missing.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 18.—The most complete list of casualties at the Windsor hotel fire show that fourteen persons were killed and possibly fifteen, without attempting to speculate on the bodies in the ruins.

Forty persons are missing. Fifty-two names are in the list of injured, whose whereabouts are known.

Three fire engines and 100 policemen remained all night about the burning building. Those engines poured six large volumes of water on the flames, which would start up at intervals in spite of the firemen.

Little explosions occurred every once in a while from escaping gas, the pipes having been smashed all over the lowest portion of the building, the only part that was left.

At about 9 o'clock the rear wall threatened to fall and the occupants of Nos. 6 and 8 East Forty-seventh street were ordered to leave their houses. The rear wall was bending towards those buildings.

The names and conditions of persons injured at the fire were reported at various hospitals today as follows:

Bellevue hospital—Miss Alice W. Price, sister-in-law of Governor Chandler of Georgia, fractured leg, sprained back, condition not serious.

Kate Roscoe, domestic, burned on face and broken ankle; will recover.

Mrs. C. Simmons, resident of the hotel, burns, shock; condition doubtful.

Mrs. Nellie Thomas, assistant housekeeper, shock; condition doubtful.

Dorothy Wheeler, resident of the hotel, slight injuries, shock; condition not serious.

Roosevelt hospital—Mrs. Ellen Brewster, resident of the hotel, burns and broken right leg, condition serious.

Charles Connerly, Bailey, Chicago, burns, condition serious.

Mrs. Louis Waldo, New York city, burns, not serious.

Presbyterian hospital—Adele Wheeler, burns, shock, improving.

Dorothy Wheeler, burns, shock, improving.

Miss Von Spiegle, broken leg and ribs; improving.

Miss Misch, burned face, hands and back; improving.

Edward Skelton, plumber, this city, burns, improving.

SYRUP OF FIGS
NEVER IMITATED IN QUALITY.
THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. WILL WATCH THE COUNTING.

Miller and Clement Will Have Their Tally Clerks.

There will be an interesting lobby present Monday evening at the meeting of the City Council, when the official canvass of votes will take place. President Heilmann has agreed to appoint Miller and Clement as tally clerks, while he will appoint the third. Though there is a possibility of the figures being altered slightly, it is not probable that any very material changes will be made. The close vote between Miller and Clement for City Engineer leads some to believe that the official figures may tell a different tale. The customary after-election rumors regarding erroneous counting in some precincts is heard again on the streets, but those who are circulating such reports are those who always like to appraise wiser than their fellows. The rumors, of course, are discredited.

DID NOT REMOVE THE RECEIVER.

E. C. Sessions failed yesterday to have A. S. Barney removed as receiver of the Highland Park & Fruitvale Road. It was charged in the petition that Barney had grossly neglected his duties as receiver of the road. The evidence went to show that such was not the case. It was proved that the road was running behind from $350 to $500 a month before the took charge.

After the evidence was in, Attorney Bell demurred on the ground that nothing had been proved.

Judge Ogden stated that he would be compelled to take the same view of the situation.

Attorney Farguar then said he would dismiss, without prejudice, the petition against the receiver.

Two weeks' time was given in which to investigate the question as to whether any improvements should be made on the road before it was offered for sale.

Mr. Barney has been acting as receiver without compensation, while his predecessors received pay for their services.

HE IS CITED FOR CONTEMPT.

Joseph Schwartz, executor of the estate of Jacob Fetter, deceased, has been ordered to appear before Judge Hall on March 20th to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

The order was issued in response to an affidavit filed by Henrietta Barrett, in which she alleges that Schwartz has wilfully refused and neglected to pay her claim in the estate. Her original claim was for $200.30. The court ordered a dividend of 73 per cent paid, which would amount to $111.53. Schwartz must now explain why he has not complied with the order of the court.

GREAT SYSTEM OF HANDLING TRAINS.

Billy Norton Tells About How All the Trains the Train Dispatcher are Watched at the Mole.

From facts dictated by Wm. H. Norton, Chief Train Dispatcher at the Oakland Mole.

The chief train dispatcher of any railway system is its brains. Rather, to be more exact in the matter of metaphor, he is the main ganglion of its nervous system. He is the sensitive plate of living tissues, on which is registered both the motive and the result of every operation. He is the transmitter through which every determination of the rest of the brain, the superior officers, is conveyed to the limbs of the system, and is carried out into action.

The train dispatcher system of the Western Division of the Southern Pacific railway is, probably the most intricate, the most many-sided, the most exacting and responsible in the United States. Several circumstances contribute to make it such. If not the unusually long division, measured by territory embraced, it is the division of many branches. With the main line and branches it covers 900 miles, of course, not counting duplicate tracks and sidings. It comprises, in addition, the Oakland ferry, the Vallejo ferry, the Creek route ferry, the big steamer Solano, the freight steam boats "Transit" and "Thoroughfare," and all the freight boat service.

Here, at the Oakland broad gauge mole, as nowhere else, do three great railway trunk lines converge. These are the Ogden and the Union Pacific, the Shasta route to Portland and the north, and the Sunset and the Santa Fe route southward. No other railway division in this country, or in any other, has such convergence of lines under a single management and a single system of managing machinery.

Besides these, there are, still under this same management, the suburban trains, accommodating the large population around the bay, a great metropolis in itself—the Greater Oakland that now exists in fact as it some day, to the satisfaction and benefit of all the residents and interests connected with it in name and legal form. These include the Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and Hayward trains, numbering up into the hundreds. This latter alone is a system in itself, and will be compared to the elevated railway of New York city, which is rightly looked upon as one of the mechanical wonders of the world. In fact, the Division of the Southern Pacific railway on the New York Central, might correctly be likened to a combination of several of New York city's most important transportation facilities, comprising the elevated railway on the two sides of Manhattan borough, the New York Central freight boat service from Harlem, and either one of the great Hudson river ferries, with its two lines of passenger boats, one directly across and the other extending several miles up that water course.

The system devised for the successful operation of this vast network and variety of transportation interests is naturally in the Southern Pacific, and to a skilled glance it is elaborate and bewildering. It is in reality a marvel of precision, simplicity and economy of detail. Without these attributes, no such extensive system could be run with anything like the regularity, the expedition, the comfort to the public and the immunity from accident and derangement that characterize this service.

The head of this train dispatching service is William Henry Norton. His brain is the sensitized film, the ganglion, on which are registered, at least practically and constructively, at every hour and almost every instant of the day and night, the endless, unceasing movement of the vast number of changing units which make, when taken together an incalculable arithmetical permutation of facts. He is one of the most unpretentious of men, perhaps for the reason that he has no time to put on airs. He is a man still under middle age, although he has been in the service of this company for about twenty years, and is one of its veterans. He is slightly under the average stature, with a head of face like the pictures of Rudyard Kipling. His manner, in its frank and genial directness, reminds one of that of the late Colonel Frank K. Hahn, the general manager of the New York Elevated lines, whose last words to the writer in his New York office, in response to a greeting of inquiry a few days before he lost his life so wretchedly, by stepping on the wrong track at a health resort in Virginia, were: "Oh, I've got my eye on the gun."

By the courtesy of Division Superintendent James Agler the Tribune reporter was presented to his chief train dispatcher, and from the latter's kindly coaching was enabled to see something of daylight through the mazes of his wonderful labyrinth.

In the first place, all trains running into the Oakland pier depot are controlled by a system of interlocking and automatic signals handled by men in towers at the various junctions. There are three of these towers. This tower and signal system extends as far as Sixteenth street on the north and to Alameda street, in Oakland, including Harrison street bridge, on the east. The train dispatcher's offices occupy the northeast end of the main building on the mole, extending along its three sides of glass commanding the arrival and departure of all the trains. These offices are manned by the chief dispatcher and his staff. The staff consists of an assistant chief, with eight "trick" dispatchers and eight telegraphers. A "trick dispatcher" is one who works a certain number of hours, the force being thus divided into shifts, a full complement being always on duty and always in a measure fresh and up to the top notch of alertness and working capacity. The telegraphers work with the dispatcher in handling trains by means of telegrams.

The whereabouts of the trains of every train, on all of the 900 miles of road constituting the Western Division, is constantly reported by telegraph. These reports are recorded, the instant they come into the main office on the chart. The chart is a sheet three feet in length, with a width of twenty inches, properly ruled and headed, and giving the mileage distances between each two stations. The chart is figured, from midnight to midnight, when it is laid aside and is replaced by a new one. When any entry on the chart shows a train late in arriving at a given point, or any derangement in

SUDDEN DEATH IN SAN LORENZO.

Mrs. Carrie Butler, of San Lorenzo died very suddenly yesterday at her home. While eating breakfast she complained of a pain in the diaphragm and lay down for a rest. She did not think her ailment serious, and a doctor was not summoned. At 8:30 o'clock she grew worse and expired before medical aid could be secured. Deceased was 80 years of age and a native of Massachusetts. Coroner Mehrmann will hold an inquest.

TRAINS WERE NEARLY WRECKED

Towerman Prevents a Collision at Webster Street Crossing.

What might have been a very serious collision between the Seventh and Webster street locals at 11 o'clock last night, was averted by the derring-do of the towerman at the Webster street crossing. The Webster street train was late coming from the pier and as it came booming up the street as the clear track signal was set for it. At the same time the west-bound Seventh street local was approaching. At Harrison street is a semaphore signal which the towerman claims he had set at danger. The engineer of the west-bound train states positively that the signal was for a clear track and that he therefore kept on his way.

When his engine struck the derailing switch his train was thrown from the track just as the Webster street train dashed across Seventh street less than one hundred yards ahead.

Railroad men insist there was a serious blunder somewhere. It took the wrecking crew an hour and a half to replace the derailed train.

Except a general shaking up and considerable delay there was no damage done.

About 1 o'clock this morning a switch engine which was returning to East Oakland, after adding in clearing the track, was derailed a short distance east of Twenty-third avenue. No one was hurt. The accident kept the wrecking crews busy several hours to clear the system in readiness for to-day's traffic.

Estate of Mrs. Frank. Andrew A. Frank has filed the will of Kate Frank, deceased, for probate. The will is dated February 15, 1899. The estate, valued at $4,500 is bequeathed to the following: George and Fritz Nicklas; Christian Benzling; John Benzling and Mary Ann Benzling.

Demurrers Filed. Demurrers to the second amended complaint in the Merritt contest have been filed.

Foreclosure Suit. The Hibernia Savings and Loan Society has brought suit against Charles W. Dearborn and others to foreclose a mortgage of $1,500 on property situated on East Nineteenth street and Tenth avenue.

CROWDS AT THE MOODY MEETING.

The Evangelist Doing Good Work in This City.

Every available nook and corner of the First M. E. Church was occupied by people yesterday afternoon to listen to the simple eloquence of Evangelist Moody. For his subject he had chosen five verses in the second chapter of Titus, in which the three-fold nature of grace is set forth.

Mr. Moody spoke in part as follows: "If a man will prove or confess himself to be a sinner, I will show him a savior, for this world that I have just read says: 'By grace are ye saved.' That does not mean that the Son of God is around here looking up worthy people. Not a bit of it. He is after those who are bad. You can't beg, borrow, steal or work yourselves into salvation. If you get it at all, you will accept it as a free gift. Not because you deserve it or are worthy the consideration of Almighty God, but through His graciousness He grants deliverance to captives and gives power over self."

You say that means universal salvation? Not at all. It means an universal offer. When we accept this offer God works in us to will and to do of His own good pleasure, and when that is done we have something to work out.

"Then I hear so much of people who are afraid they cannot hold out if they once start heavenward. But has not the requisite grace been promised? Can you imagine God granting life without providing sustenance? In this old book there is food sufficient to make fat the bones of every nursing, limping, complaining, grumbling, useless child of God."

The evening services were held in the First Presbyterian Church. The doctrine of atonement was presented as the keynote of all scriptures. The series of meetings will be concluded tomorrow. The hours of service have been set for 9 A. M. and 2 P. M.

RUSHING BILLS AT THE FINISH.

Many Measures Will Go to the Governor Before the Day Is Over.

(Special to The Tribune.) SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—Legislation of all sorts and descriptions is being hurried through the Senate today, and the Governor's office will be swamped with bills before midnight comes.

Among the latest measures to reach his hands is the one appropriating $3,000 for the relief of John C. Pelton, the veteran Oakland educator. It had a stormy passage through the Senate, being lost on the first roll call, and only carried on reconsideration by one vote. All three of the Alameda county members voted against it on both occasions.

Senator Eddie Wolfe won his fight for an appropriation of $25,000 for the San Francisco Exposition after a roll-call vote. Senator Taylor voted for the bill and Senators Leavitt and Stratton against it. It carried by a vote of 24 to 13.

APPOINTMENTS BY GOVERNOR GAGE.

Many Applicants Are Seeking Favors From the Chief Executive.

(Special to The Tribune.) SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—It is possible that before the day is over the Governor will send some nominations of importance to the Senate, although he may possibly postpone doing so until he has got out of his way the mass of legislation now before him.

REGISTRAR OF VOTERS.
One of the first places to be filled will be that of Registrar of Voters for San Francisco, for there is to be an election here this fall, and it is necessary, therefore, to have the office in the hands of the Republicans.

It is understood that the place will go to either Assemblyman Rickard of San Francisco or Jake Steppacher, the Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee. Rickard has been entrusted with all the election laws in the Assembly, and is relying on the influence of Colonel Burns, though Steppacher can doubtless also figure that way himself.

Some are inclined to think that, although the new charter includes the Registrar of Voters as a municipal office, there will be a way to get around that and keep it a gubernatorial appointment.

Any way, it is important to have it in Republican hands just now, so Registrar Bigley will doubtless have to go.

THE HARBOR COMMISSIONER.
The vacancy that occurs on April 1st in the Harbor Commission is also one that must be at once attended to, and as, unless the Governor sends in his nomination for confirmation by the Senate today, his appointee will have to run the gamut for a couple of years, it is thought that he may dispose of the matter forthwith.

Of candidates there are plenty, the list including Colonel Bassett of Los Angeles, Charles Spear of Berkeley, Ed Smith, J. Alva Watt, Paris Kilburn and John Daly of San Francisco, ex-Railroad Commissioner Clark of Stockton, Colonel J. L. Bromwell of Oakland and C. T. Elliott of San Francisco.

Of these it is said that the best chance rests between Spear, Clark, Elliott and Paris.

APPAISERS APPOINTED.
E. H. Woolsey, W. B. Hardy and J. A. Webster have been appointed appraisers on the estate of Jacob I. Smith, deceased.

CASTORIA.
The Utica Herald of March 10th says: Hon. Victor H. Metcalf of Oakland, California, arrived in the city last evening from New York, and is stopping at Bagge's Hotel. Mr. Metcalf was elected to Congress by the Republicans of the Third California District last fall on a sound money platform, defeating the Democratic-Federalist-Free-Silver-Republican candidate, J. Aubrey Jones, by the largest majority ever given in the district. The majority was 6,751 in a total vote of 23,000. The normal Republican majority is about 2,500.

Mr. Metcalf is a son of the late William Metcalf, who left Utica about twenty years ago and settled in California. He was born and brought up here, and was practicing law in this city in 1880, when he went to California to live. His visit at the present time is for the purpose of settling some affairs connected with the estate of his father, who died about a year ago. He was in Washington, when Congress adjourned, and will return there before going to his home at Oakland.

"Utica will always have a warm spot in my heart," said Mr. Metcalf as he was talking over old days in this city last evening. "I have many friends here whom I am always glad to see, and I never come East without stopping."

He has been East a dozen times since he settled in California, and one of the most enjoyable features of every trip has been the visit to Utica.

Like the very large majority of people in his State, Mr. Metcalf is an ardent expansionist, and he is interested in the views of Eastern people upon the question of holding the Philippines. "Personally," he said, "I am absolutely and unqualifiedly in favor of retaining the Philippines and Porto Rico. From what I have observed on my trip, I judge that most of our people feel the way. But we should withdraw from Cuba as soon as a stable government has been formed there. This opposition to expansion is an old story. Take California, for instance. There was decided opposition to acquiring it, but no one today would say he was sorry California belongs to the United States."

Mr. Metcalf will remain in Utica three or four days.

Police News.
Al Lund, charged with conducting a lottery game, forfeited $25 bail in the Police Court.

The case of Manuel Frost, charged with failure to provide, was continued to March 21st to plead. The attorney for Frost stated to the court that defendant and his wife had been divorced a year ago, and if there was a cause for action it must be in the Superior Court.

Three more violators of the bicycle ordinance donated $2 each to the city's funds. They were Mary Brown, A. McFarland and A. Stanley.

The case of Augustus Flick, charged with petty larceny, was set for a jury trial March 22d. J. J. Gallagher, who swore to the complaint, states that he and Flick slept in the same bed, and that when he retired he had a lone dollar in his trousers pocket. When he awoke next morning, he says, Flick and the dollar had both disappeared.

The charge of vagrancy against Martin Deary was stricken from the calendar.

Convention Chorus.
The first rehearsal of the convention chorus will be held on Tuesday next, March 21st, at the First Congregational Church, at 8 P. M.

It is expected that all who take part will, as far as possible, be prompt and punctual in attendance, and thus secure the excellent musical results as in the past, and to which we stand pledged. Please bring $1 convention chorus book.

MUSIC COMMITTEE.
A. M. Benham, Chairman; Richard I. Mould, Secretary.

Sprained His Elbow.
C. Anderson, a laborer residing at Eleventh and Pine streets, had his elbow sprained by falling off the steps of the local train at the Sixteenth street depot last evening. He was treated at the Receiving Hospital by Steward Borchert.

COLUMBUS OF THE ART OF HYDRAULIC DREDGING.

A. B. Bowers' Contribution to the World's Scientific Engineering.

Dredgers Invented Which Have Revolutionized the Entire System of Harbor Work.

In this issue is presented a view of the Bowers hydraulic dredge now engaged in the improvement of Lake Merritt and the filling in of low lands near the Piedmont Baths in this city. Though the smallest and cheapest Bowers dredge ever constructed, with the possible exception of one built and operated by John Hackett, it is doing good work and making rapid progress.

San Francisco claims to be the home of the cable-road, and certain public-spirited citizens of that city are engaged in the laudable effort to erect a statue to the inventor. Oakland may claim the honor of having given birth and nurture to the greater, more far-reaching, more important invention, of the hydraulic dredge.

DREDGING THE HARBOR.

In Oakland harbor, in 1873, while the inventor was a resident of this city, was put in operation the first complete modern hydraulic dredge and system of dredging with side feed, rotary excavator, self-contained pivot and floating discharge pipe, delivering its spoil on land, ever used, though the Bowers invention antedated this demonstration by many years.

Three years later the National Government, under the recommendation of Col. Mendel, adopted this system for the permanent improvement of Oakland harbor, and since then, hydraulic dredges have been almost constantly engaged on this work. Through the agency of these machines the broad tidal basin and navigable channel have been constructed, and deep laden ships and ocean steamers now float where but a few years ago scant water for skiffs could be found. Large areas of marsh and mud flats have been reclaimed and added to the thousand has any conception of the fearful odds against which the inventor has been contending, nor the heroism with which he has kept up the fight.

And though the records show some portions of this fight to have been so pathetic as to be almost tragical, few even of Mr. Alphonso B. Bowers' most intimate friends, have any just appreciation of what he has passed through. References to Mr. Bowers' boyhood days might be interesting reading, but his absence from the city confines this sketch to such details as can be found in published statements and in the records of the court.

DEFENDING HIS RIGHTS.

No sooner had the value of his invention been demonstrated than infringements sprang up wherever his machines could be utilized. Many of these were compromised without litigation, but the records of the United States Circuit Court, and Circuit Court of Appeals show that nineteen suits have been brought by him in defense of his rights. In all, these wherein decision have been rendered, they have invariably been in his favor. The others, in various states of progress, will undoubtedly terminate in the same way, as the defense, or rather lack of defense, so far as can be judged from the records and decisions is practically the same in each and all.

Then follow references to page and volume of official reports wherein numerous decisions in his favor may be found, which are omitted to save time and space. Other decisions will come in the near future. Those already rendered are so broad and sweeping that it is said by mechanical engineers to be impossible to construct a sums of money, Mr. Bowers has become the legal assignee of eighteen other patents, owning now thirty in all, and having 453 claims, 389 of which sprang from his fertile brain. He has also numerous other applications still pending and many foreign patents. It took thirty-five years for the little twig planted in 1854, of which that first drawing was emblematic, to grow into the stately tree of 1897 with its rich harvest of fruit. But the tree came near being the tombstone of the inventor. Happily he lives and is able to enjoy the fruits of his labor, although they come to him only after a long and bitter struggle such as few could have fought and won.

The impecunious crank of 1864 has turned into the successful contractor of 1898, now recognized as a man of brains and ability. He is given credit for the possession of fighting qualities against any and all odds, such as few possess. When he knows his cause to be just he allows no intimidation, no threats, no cajolery or promises to turn him from his path or prevent his arriving at the point for which he has set out.

This is no flattery; it is simple, unvarnished truth. His success is of record in the courts of the United States, and the merits of his inventions are evidenced by the extensive use made of them wherever they have become known and can be utilized.

ABLE LEGAL ASSISTANCE.

Mr. Bowers has, of course, been at all times at the head and front of the fight, he has sustained in the courts with such vigor against the individuals and combinations opposed to him, but he has had able coadjutors who believed in him, and the merits and ultimate success of his inventions. His attorneys were John H. Miller, M. M. Estee, W. F. Fitzgerald, Jas. P. Langhorne, Albert C. Aiken, John J. Scrivner, Crittenden, Thornton and John L. Boone of San Francisco; Judge Lyndall Hill, John Hill, Ira W. Ernel and Mr. Griggs of Chicago; W. A. Bartlett, J. Walter Cocksey and General W. A. Maury of Washington, D. C.; Clarkson A. Collins of New York, and Campbell & Powell of Tacoma.

ATTORNEY MILLER'S GOOD WORK.

One of these deserves special mention—the man who did most of the hard fighting in the courts, who watched vigilantly every phase of the case as it came up, ever ready to defend, equally ready to attack and always equal to the occasion—John H. Miller, the leading counsel; a man eminent in his profession, and particularly in patent law; one who was able in his briefs to present with remarkable clearness all the points at issue, and by concise statements to so bring them before the Court that no further explanations are needed.

Added to these meritorious qualities is the other one most valuable to counsel—the ability to logically reason and argue in favor of his client, and to have ready for reference the precedents and decisions bearing on the cases at issue. All these faculties Mr. Miller is possessed of in more than ordinary degree, and he is, for these reasons, and for his reputation as being an honest, sterling member of the bar, looked up to as a leader among gentlemen of the profession. He would not be guilty of a dishonorable act, neither would he resort to trickery of any kind to gain a case; nor would Mr. Bowers allow him to resort to such procedure even were he willing. "Our cause, it is just, and triumph we must," has been the motto of Mr. Bowers and his attorney from the start to finish all through the long, weary litigation. That they were right in their faith in the ultimate triumph of right over might the sequel proves, and these gentlemen are now in a position to reap rich rewards for the well-earned victory.

FIGHTING INFRINGEMENTS.

But Mr. Bowers now controls large capital. He is president of two large dredging companies, vice-president of a third, and interested in large contracts, but nevertheless he is contending the cases against the other defendants with sleepless vigilance.

In his various suits against infringers of his patents, nothing has been set up in defense that had not been carefully considered in the Patent Office before granting the Bowers patents. Nothing in the shape of hydraulic dredges, antedating his invention, was found except a few crude devices that existed only on paper, having never been put into practical operation, and which, though not antedating a single one of the Bowers claims, were pronounced by every mechanical expert and practical dredging man who testified in these cases, (except those directly interested in the infringing machines), to be impracticable and utterly worthless.

The principal ones were those of Bodmer and Schwartzkopf, yet these impracticable and utterly worthless devices enabled a score of infringers to make millions of dollars; several of them to gather up and take their ill-gotten gains to foreign lands beyond the reach of justice; tied up all the United States Circuit Courts, and kept the inventor in misery and wretchedness for more than thirty years.

The most flagrant of all the infringements of the Bowers patents, as it appears from the records, is that of Lindon W. Bates of Chicago, through the San Francisco Bridge Company and the New York Dredging Company are not far behind. On February 11, 1887, Bates took a license from Mr. Bowers for Kansas City and operated two dredgers there. On January 23, 1888, he with Adam L. Amborg and H. A. Christy, took a license for Palis Bay and the bay of San Diego, in Southern California, where one dredger was put in operation.

Subsequently, on December 16, 1888, he and his associates took a license for the State of Washington, exclusive of Gray's harbor, and also for that portion of Oregon including the Columbia River and its tributaries, and have operated two Bowers dredgers there up to the present time. Until about four years ago Bates was manager of the Bowers Dredging Company. As such he obtained blue prints of the working drawings of the Bowers dredgers "Anaconda" and "Python."

TROUBLESOME CUSTOMER.

After losing his position as manager of the Bowers Dredging Company on account of misappropriation of company funds, he went to Chicago, outside of all three of his licenses, taking the blue prints with him, and there took contract and built two Bowers dredgers used by Heldmaler & Neu on the drainage canal, changing a few details, chiefly in the way of make-shifts of cheaper and inferior construction. He obtained patents for several of these changes of minor details, which however, give him no right to use the Bowers invention outside of the territory covered by his licenses. Since then he has built a machine for the Mississippi River Commission, consisting of six Bowers cutters on a single hull, and on this also he obtained a patent for some trivial additions and changes though its main parts are all covered by the Bowers patents.

BATES TOOK CREDIT NOT DUE.

The official tests of this machine raised expectation that have not been realized, for its capacity, as shown by these tests, fell far short of six times the best performance of a single Bowers cutter. Whenever repairs are to be made on any part, the whole machine must shut down. It is as though a fleet of six dredgers at work on a river should all lay up when any one of them is disabled. For this and other reasons the idea of building more for the Mississippi River has been abandoned, and the United States Government has since built for the same river four other hydraulic dredgers of different design.

Before leaving for Europe Mr. Bates illustrated and described the machines built by him in the "Engineering News," "Harper's Weekly," "Scientific American," and later in some of the leading foreign technical journals, modestly terming them "The Bowers Hydraulic Dredgers." He does not sign his name to all of these articles, but the accuracy of description is such as could be given by no one not thoroughly familiar with the Bowers dredge. Suit in equity is now pending against him for this infringement and suit against the Government has been brought in the United States Court of Claims for the use of this dredge.

When subpoenaed by Bowers to testify before the Master in Chancery concerning this infringement, he refused to answer and before an order of court, commanding him to answer, could be procured, he skipped out of the country, leaving numerous debts to bawling his losses, while he seeks new victims in other lands.

Bowers and his attorneys think that Bates could not have expected long to masquerade as the inventor of this dredge, and that it is not clear, unless it be for the benefit of the other would-be infringers, why he has so fully illustrated and described the Bowers invention. He presents, according to the records, the curious anomaly of claiming a monopoly of hydraulic dredging under the Bowers patents in the territory covered by his licenses and of openly defying these patents everywhere else, until, quite for infringements made the country too hot for him.

MADE FALSE STATEMENTS.

In his recent visit to Europe Mr. Bowers found Mr. Bates posing as the only one who had made any considerable success in the way of hydraulic dredging. He (Mr. Bates) read before the International Congress on Commerce and Navigation, which convened in the latter part of July, 1898 at Brussels, a paper on hydraulic dredgers, in which he gave to Louis Schwartzkopf of Berlin, the credit of having invented the hydraulic system of dredging and filling, though his (Schwartzkopf's) apparatus has never been put into successful operation. As improvers on Schwartzkopf's invention he gave the names of several whose devices were never tested, and others that had been tested and found impracticable, making no mention whatever of Mr. Bowers as being in any way connected with hydraulic dredging, saying in substance, that these pioneers served the purpose of calling attention to the subject and of demonstrating the fact that the line of efficiency did not lie in their direction. This was the condition of affairs when he (Mr. Bates) was called upon to devise suitable hydraulic dredging apparatus for the United States Government. The paper then went on to describe machines built and operated by him, which under all of the decisions in the Bowers cases are covered by the Bowers patents; but neglecting to state this fact, his paper conveyed the idea that he was the only one who had achieved any success whatever in the construction of hydraulic dredgers.

A Word About A. B. Bowers.

A man who has spent the better part of a lifetime in a fight, alone and unaided, against the rich, the powerful and the unscrupulous, who has felt "the oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely," win or lose, often emerges from the contest a cynic and a misanthrope. With Bowers it is singularly different. A life of warfare has poured no bitterness into his soul. If the record of his generous help to the needy were to be mentioned here he would become a shining mark for the adventurer.

His love of children amuses his friends, and he delights in submission to their charming tyranny. He is reserved to strangers, and seems even dull in conversation with them, but among congenial people he possesses a charm of manner that comes from the heart, and he is one of the best of single handed talkers.

Women, young and old, he treats with a deference, a noble tenderness, that has been a lifelong characteristic of his. It would be a pleasing task to turn from the narration of the continuous fights over infringements, and patents to a study of the social side of this original mind, but Mr. Bowers is now East pressing his remaining suits, and should anything of the kind catch his eye it would meet his disapproval.

AS AN AUTHOR.

It seems to be a condition of his mind that it impels him to continual effort. When in health it is seldom that he has not an article under way for some periodical. He wrote for various California, Eastern and European journals on engineering, political economy, sociology, religion, poetry—and hydraulic dredging.

ONLY OF TONGUE.

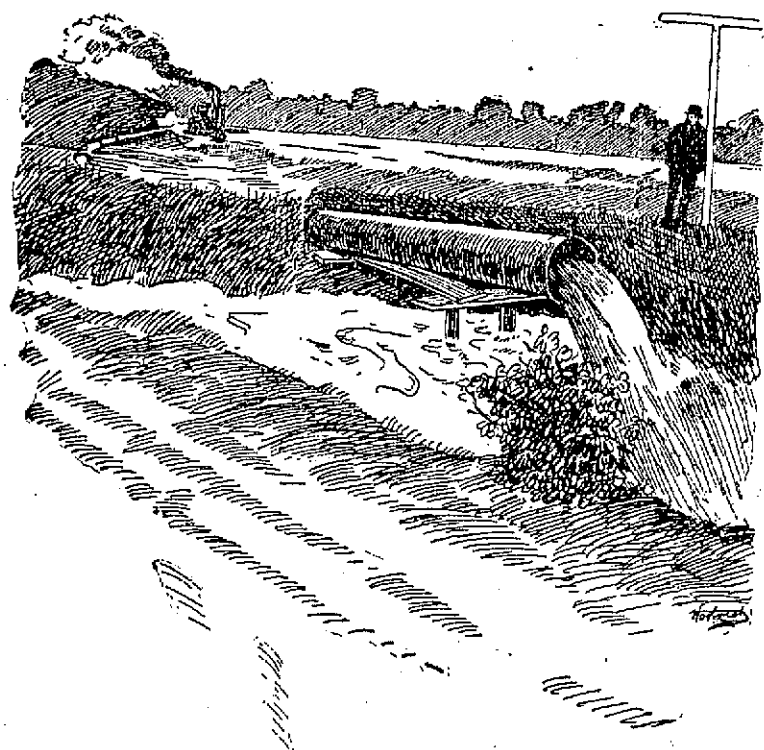

In the discussion which followed Mr. Bowers, who was a member of this congress, stated that in view of the fact that Mr. Bates was a licensee of his and that under the decisions of the business portions of this city; lands that but for these machines would still be foul-smelling, pestiferous wastes, and breeders of the pestiferous mosquito. Not only have the business facilities of this port been greatly increased by these machines, but they have been utilized in the conversion of mud flats and marshes into parks for the ornamentation of Oakland and the improvement of its sanitary conditions; and in these various ways they have contributed to the health, wealth and material prosperity that has made Oakland the second largest city on this Coast.

The Inventor and His Pluck.

In this connection it is fitting that brief reference be made to the inventor; to his fight against almost overwhelming odds—the almost interminable litigation through which he has been compelled to pass in defense of his rights, and the unparalleled series of victories won in his behalf by his attorney, Mr. John H. Miller. The following has therefore been compiled from the records of the courts and other authentic sources.

Narratives of those whose lives have been eventful always interest the public, and especially those who are themselves making an uphill fight. Accordingly, at frequent intervals, the public and scientific press has for years past given, in more or less detail, the story of the pluck, persistence, litigation and triumphs of the inventor of hydraulic dredging and dredgers until his name and deeds have become historical. This is not confined to the State of California nor to the Pacific Coast. In one form or another the story has gone the wide world over, and been told and retold in many tongues; yet not one in a successful hydraulic dredge without infringement of the Bowers patents and inventions.

Leading manufacturers here and elsewhere have endeavored to design such dredgers, and failing to do so, have refused to build except under license from the inventor. But others, ignorant, unscrupulous and lawless, to whom might is right, disregard all these decisions, hoping that in the multitude of marauders by whom Mr. Bowers is surrounded, they may escape detection, or failing of this, be able by combining forces, to wear out the inventor and go unwhipped of justice. These have counted without their host, and to all such the day of reckoning will come, as they are beginning to learn to their sorrow.

"The mills of the gods grind slow, but they grind exceeding small, and Bowers is as tireless as fate. If he was penniless when these suits were brought, he is not penniless now. He says he is able and thoroughly determined to protect his rights, and in this he has the sympathy not only of hundreds who personally know the facts, but of multitudes throughout not only the entire Pacific Coast, but the whole world, who appreciate his pluck and persistence.

The decisions in his favor are too long and too numerous to be noted here. The gist of them all is that Bowers is the original or pioneer inventor of hydraulic dredgers and the hydraulic system of dredging, and that his patents could not be construed as limited to the forms shown by the drawings of his patents; also, that the claims of his patents were entitled to a broad and liberal construction as pioneer claims in the art.

REWARD FOR LABOR.

In addition to the receipt of large

DREDGER AND PIPE ON LAKE MERRITT.

United States courts the Bates machines (so called) were Bowers machines (so called) were Bowers patents with the exception of a few trifling details of construction and that some of the very machines illustrated by him in his paper were paying him (Bowers) a royalty; and in view of the further fact that he mentioned so many whose machines had never been tested and others who merely conducted a few abandoned experiments he was naturally a little surprised to find that although all these had been carefully scrutinized by the United States patent office before granting the Bowers patents, and by the United States Courts prior to their deciding that Mr. Bowers was the original inventor of the system, no mention had been made of him in the paper under discussion.

"However," added Mr. Bowers, "as the author of the paper has been absent for a long time from his native country perhaps this may account for his ignorance of the decisions of the courts and of other events there recently transpiring."

In this paper Mr. Bates conveyed the impression that he had furnished several dredgers to the Russian government, and gave drawings of what purported to be such dredgers although he never had a contract with the Russian government for dredgers or work, and had never furnished that government with any dredger whatever, he having simply given a license to the Societe Cockerill Seralin in Belgium, for which the Societe paid him a royalty for the privilege of building a dredge similar to the one for the building of which suit was then pending in the city of Chicago.

The study of law always had an attraction for his analytical mind. Long before he had become a victim of "the law's delay" he had attacked that study with the fierce energy that was a part of his mental equipment. He read a whole library of authorities, and although he never practiced, was well grounded in the principles of law. Dissatisfied with the specifications and claims of his first attorneys, he was compelled to prepare his own applications. This necessitated the study of patent law, and into this wilderness he plunged as if it were a garden of roses. These studies were of great service in assisting his attorneys in his patent litigation, so much so, indeed, that one of the opposing counsel said ruefully that Bowers would never have won his case if he hadn't worked it up himself and gone out all there was in it.

A recent editorial in the Wave shows so just an appreciation of the man and his work that it is quoted as follows:

GREAT INVENTIVE GENIUS.

"One of the most interesting figures of the day is Alphonso B. Bowers of this city, the inventor and patentee of the great Bowers dredge. The stories of his life, of the difficulties he has encountered, of the obstacles he has met and triumphed over, read like a page of romance. We are all familiar in the biographies of great men with the embarrassments which fate puts in their way. Like the course of true love, their path to prominence and fortune is ever beset with hindrances. But it is those hindrances that bring out the character of the man and reveal his capacity to sustain the burden of eminence and great wealth. Not even the foulest pages of the history of the building of the Pacific rail-
